N. Korea Launches Missiles

Rocket capable of hitting U.S. fails after 35 seconds

TOKYO | Defying stern warnings from Washington and Tokyo, North Korea tested at least five missiles, including a long-range Taepodong-2 capable of reaching the United States, the White House said, describing the tests as "a provocation."

Four of the missiles were short range and the long-range Taepodong-2 failed after 35 seconds. The short-range missiles landed in the Sea of Japan.

"We are urgently consulting with members of the Security Council," said John Bolton, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Thomas Schieffer, the U.S. ambassador to Japan, called the launches "a provocative act," and the White House said Pyongyang had further alienated itself from the world community.

Two U.S. State Department officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Taepodong-2, North Korea's most advanced missile, has a range of up to 9,320 miles. Experts believe it could reach the United States with a light payload.

The launch came after weeks of speculation that the North was preparing to test the Taepodong-2 from a site on its northeast coast. The preparations had generated stern warnings from the United States and Japan, which had threatened possible economic sanctions in response. ERIC TALMADGE (AP)

KITTIES

A Better Name: Li'l Fargo

Two weeks after a trip through a wood chipper, a Boca Raton, Fla., kitten is thriving, reported the South Florida Sun-Sentinel. Christened "Chipper," the little cat was asleep in the machine when someone turned it on. Rushed to an animal hospital, Chipper—who was apparently a stray or feral beastie, rather than a pet—underwent three surgeries, and is awaiting a fourth. He's scarred, but mobile, friendly and eating healthily. (EXPRESS)

Primate Declares Some Independence

A monkey named Oops bolted from the Roanoke, Va., city zoo, sparking a park-wide shutdown as staff searched the surrounding forest. The 20-pound Japanese macaque and her family were being moved from their holding cells to the exhibit for routine feeding and cleaning when she got away Sunday morning, said David Jobe, education curator. "We hope that because they're active in the daytime, she slept last night and woke up this morning hungry," Jobe said. "We hope to take advantage of a hungry monkey." (AP)

Japanese competitive eater Takeru Kobayashi, 27, set a new record by devouring a 53 3/4 frankfurters in 12 minutes to win the annual Independence Day hot dog eating competition on Coney Island, N.Y. He broke his own record of 53 1/2 hot dogs, set two years ago. His strongest competition was Joey Chestnut, a civil engineering student from San Jose, Calif., who set an American record by eating 50 hot dogs during a qualifying tournament in Las Vegas. (AP)

The latest self-incriminating thief struck in Riverhead, N.Y., on June 10. Charmaine Williams Stein, 30, handed

Joseph Loggia said Friday. Stein, who police believe was out of town for several weeks, was arrested last Wednesday. An accomplice, bank teller John Mueller, was arrested and charged earlier in June. (AP)

Discovery Shuttle Takes to the Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. | NASA gave the shuttle Discovery a majestic Fourth of July send-off and said early signs showed the spacecraft to be in good shape, despite once again being struck by the flying foam that has plagued the program.

The first-ever Independence Day manned launch came after two weather delays and over objections from those within NASA who argued for more fuel-tank repairs.

Shuttle managers said early video images of liftoff showing small pieces of foam breaking away — and one even striking the spacecraft — were not troubling.

NASA Administrator Michael Griffin said of the launch: "They don't get much better than this."

It was Griffin who chose to go ahead with the mission over concerns from the space agency's safety officer and chief engineer about foam problems that have dogged the Discovery thundered away from its seaside pad at 2:38 p.m. EDT.

About three minutes later, as many as five pieces of debris were seen flying off the tank, and another piece of foam popped off a bit later, Mission Control told the crew.

The latter piece seemed to strike the belly of Discovery, but NASA assured the seven astronauts it was no concern because of the timing. MARCIA DUNN (AP)

NORAD Placed On High Alert

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. | The North American Aerospace Defense Command has been placed on heightened alert, officials said.

NORAD monitors the skies for threats to North American secu-

Bush: Enemies Vulnerable

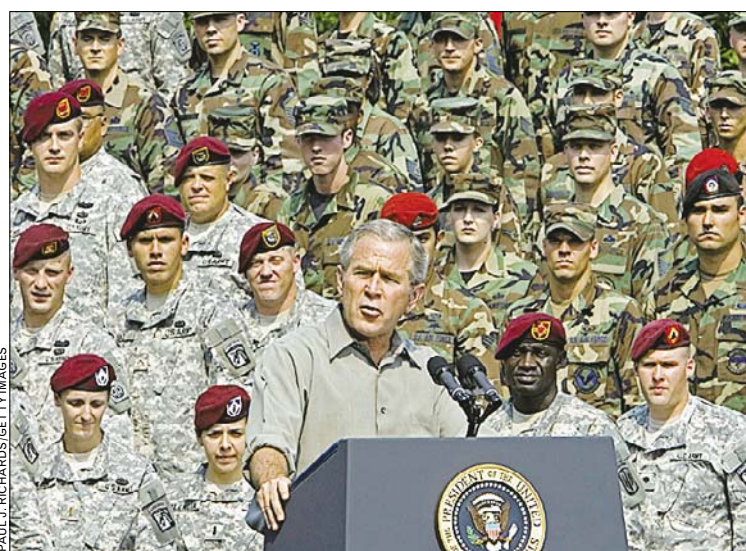

President says calls for withdrawal timetable undercut troop efforts

FORT BRAGG, N.C. | President Bush said Tuesday that insurgents in Iraq and Afghanistan are violent, yet vulnerable, and urged U.S. troops to march on in the fight for freedom so Americans can celebrate Independence Day year round.

At an outdoor pep rally for troops at Fort Bragg, Bush recalled the death of Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the former leader of al-Qaeda in Iraq, who died last month in a U.S. airstrike.

"At this moment of vulnerability for the enemy, we will continue to strike their network," Bush told 3,500 U.S. troops and others at an outdoor speech at Fort Bragg, home of the 82nd Airborne Division.

Since al-Zarqawi's death, Bush said U.S.-led coalition and Iraqi forces have launched more than 190 raids on targets throughout the country, captured more than 700 enemy operatives and killed 60 more.

In his talk, Bush made a veiled jab at some Democrats who have called for an immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq. He said setting a timetable for pulling out troops would undermine a fragile new Iraqi government, undercut the efforts of U.S. troops and signal to the enemy that if they wait a little longer, American forces would leave Iraq. DEB RIECHMANN (AP)

Clinton Draws Line On Supporting Lieberman

Connecticut Democrat mulls independent run if he loses party primary

ALBANY, N.Y. | Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, a longtime supporter of Sen. Joseph Lieberman, said Tuesday she will not back the Connecticut Democrat's bid for re-election if he loses their party's primary.

"I've known Joe Lieberman for more than 30 years. I have been pleased to support him in his campaign for re-election, and hope that he is our party's nominee," the former first lady said in a statement.

"But I want to be clear that I will support the nominee chosen by Connecticut Democrats in their primary," the New York Democrat added. "I believe in the Democratic Party, and I believe we must honor the decisions made by Democratic primary voters."

Facing a stronger-than-expected Democratic primary challenge from millionaire businessman Ned Lamont and sagging poll numbers because of his support of the Iraq war, Lieberman said Monday he'll collect signatures to assure an independent ballot spot for the November election if he loses the Aug. 8 primary.

Lieberman

The move has complicated life for Lieberman's fellow Senate Democrats, including Clinton, who has been under attack from some Democrats for her own vote to authorize the Iraq war and her continuing refusal to back a specific timetable for the withdrawal of U.S. troops, despite her criticism of President Bush's handling of the conflict. MARC HUMBERT (AP)

Scientists Find Cancer Link to Early Menopause

WASHINGTON | Women who survived cancer during childhood are at risk of premature menopause, researchers report Tuesday.

Some cancer treatments can immediately harm girls' reproductive development. But with most childhood cancer patients now surviving, a bigger question is whether girls whose ovaries seemed OK at first actually have lingering damage that will trigger menopause before age 40. If so, the risk could affect their family planning as well as their health in middle age, because early menopause can trigger thinning bones and other problems. (AP)

Mexican Leftist Demands Recount

López Obrador trails conservative Calderón by razor-thin margin

MEXICO CITY | Mexico's main leftist party demanded a ballot-by-ballot recount Tuesday in the closest presidential race ever, claiming the voting was manipulated and renewing fears that its fiery candidate will launch violent street protests if he doesn't get his way.

The demand for a recount of all 41 million votes cast Sunday set up a possible marathon showdown that could go to Mexico's electoral courts, stirring memories of the bitter Florida recount in the 2000 U.S. presidential race.

Former Mexico City Mayor Andrés Manuel López Obrador was trailing conservative Felipe Calderón by about 1 percent in preliminary tallies.

"We are convinced of the triumph of our candidate," said López Obrador campaign manager Jesus Ortega. "We will demand a recount, vote by vote."

But Interior Secretary Carlos Abascal said hours later that recounting every ballot was "physically impossible and also legally impossible."

At the close of voting Sunday,

Planning Begins For Cambodian Genocide Trials

PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA | Judges and prosecutors for a U.N.-backed tribunal in Cambodia began drawing up plans Tuesday to try former Khmer Rouge leaders for genocide and crimes against humanity, an official said.

The Cambodian and foreign judicial officials started four days of discussions on holding the trials, expected to start in 2007, said

Reach Sambath, a spokesman for the tribunal's administration.

The swearing-in on Monday of 17 Cambodian and 10 U.N.-appointed foreign jurists was a major step toward seeking justice for the victims of the brutal Khmer Rouge regime. Its policies in the late 1970s are blamed for an estimated 1.7 million deaths.

The foreign jurists will be studying Cambodian traditions and the laws under which the tribunal was established. Their Cambodian counterparts will learn about international laws and other genocide tribunals. (AP)

Iraqis Call for Justice In Alleged Rape Case

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraqi lawmakers blasted the United States on Tuesday over an alleged rape-slaying case, while a southern governor said he was resigning amid fears Iraqi forces cannot handle security once coalition troops transfer responsibility there this month.

Two women legislators called for Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki to be summoned to parliament to give assurances that justice would be done in the March 12 slaying of a family in Mahmoudiya. A teenage girl allegedly was raped before being killed.

Former Pfc. Steven D. Green was charged Monday in federal court in North Carolina with murder and rape. At least four other U.S. soldiers still in Iraq are also under investigation.

Justice Minister Hashim Abdul-Rahman al-Shebli, a Sunni Arab, denounced the purported attack as "monstrous and inhuman" and called on the U.N. Security Council "to stop these violations of human rights."

The two lawmakers said condemnation was not enough.

"We demand severe punishment for the five soldiers involved," Ayda al-Sharif said. KIM GAMEL (AP)

Olmert calls strike an 'escalation' of fallout over captive soldier

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Palestinian militants hit an Israeli city with a rocket from Gaza for the first time on Tuesday, causing no casualties but drawing a pledge of harsh retaliation from Israel, already in the midst of a military offensive.

Prime Minister Ehud Olmert called the rocket fire on the coastal city of Ashkelon a "major escalation," coming just hours after a deadline set by the militants holding an Israeli soldier passed with Israel rejecting demands to release Palestinian prisoners.

The rocket exploded in the courtyard of a school in Ashkelon, a city of 110,000 on Israel's seacoast north of Gaza. The school was empty at the time and no one was hurt.

In the hours before the rocket attack, Israeli forces were already operating in northern Gaza with a mission of looking for tunnels and other facilities used by militants, according to the area army commander.

However, the troops stayed outside from Palestinian towns, as they have since Israel started its offensive in Gaza a week ago. Olmert indicated that might change in response to the rocket attack on Ashkelon.

The militants holding 19-year-old Israeli Cpl. Gilad Shalit said they will not harm him — if he is still alive — despite Israel's rejection of their ultimatum, but warned that they would provide no information about him, leaving his condition unclear. RAVI NESSMAN (AP)

Ugandan Leader Weighs Amnesty For Rebel Chief

KAMPALA, UGANDA | Uganda's president said Tuesday he might grant amnesty to an elusive rebel leader wanted by the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity.

President Yoweri Museveni agreed Monday to begin peace talks in neighboring Sudan with the Lord's Resistance Army rebel group. If those talks go well, Museveni promised the group's leader, Joseph Kony, would not be arrested, a presidential spokesman said in a statement.

The Heat Is On at July 4 Celebration

Dozens are treated for exhaustion following parade near the Mall

WASHINGTON | About 100 people were treated for heat exhaustion after Tuesday's Independence Day parade near the Mall.

One person was hospitalized, and the rest were treated at the scene by paramedics for injuries related to the 90-degree heat, said Alan Etter a spokesman for the District of Columbia fire and EMS Department. Most of the patients were parade participants, he said.

"This happens every year, though not to this degree," Etter said.

As many as 500,000 people were expected to endure the hot, humid conditions to watch the annual parade, "Capitol Fourth" concert and fireworks display. Officials do not provide crowd estimates during events, but many people were likely waiting to come out until temperatures cooled in the evening, said Sgt. Scott Fear, of the U.S. Park Police.

buses were available in the Mall area to help people cool off. The National Park Service set up several misting tents and is providing basic life support. D.C. paramedics were taking care of the more serious injuries. There were also doctors on hand at some of the seven first aid tents.

The celebration was generally peaceful, with only a handful of arrests and no violence, Fear said. Police arrested at least five people, two for trying to disrupt a parade on Constitution Avenue. (AP)

Metro Eyes 'Express Lanes' Test

Pilot program would dedicate gates only to riders using SmarTrip

WASHINGTON | Metro hopes to duplicate the success of E-ZPass toll lanes by creating "express lanes" at toll gates for passengers who use SmarTrip — the microchip embedded cards used to pay for bus and rail fares and parking.

The Metro board will vote Thursday on a pilot project to dedicate some toll gates at busy stations to SmarTrip users.

SmarTrip cards allow users to move through the gates 45 percent faster than passengers who use paper farecards, transit system officials said.

Farecards, which must be inserted in the gates and removed, often get crumpled or demagnetized, preventing the gates from opening. Regular commuters complain that tourists and others who have problems with farecards cause too many delays.

The proposed pilot project would dedicate some fare gates to SmarTrip users at Anacostia, New Carrollton, Md., and the Vienna/Fairfax-GMU station in Virginia. The stations all have high ridership, with 80 percent using SmarTrip, Metro officials said. They also each have 10 fare gates, enough to allow several to become "express lanes." (AP)

Court Upholds Cell Phone Fees in Md.

BALTIMORE | Two of Maryland's largest jurisdictions did not overstep their authority by imposing cell phone fees, the state tax court has ruled.

The court rejected an attempt by four wireless providers to overturn Baltimore's $3.50 a month fee on cell phones and land lines imposed in 2004, and Montgomery County's $2 wireless fee imposed three years ago.

T-Mobile, Verizon Wireless, Sprint and Cingular Wireless challenged the fees in February 2005, arguing that they were really sales taxes, which only the state can impose. (AP)

Second Gorilla Dies at National Zoo

WASHINGTON | An adult male gorilla at the National Zoo died Monday afternoon, the second gorilla to die at the facility in three days.

A 34-year-old male gorilla, named Mopie, collapsed and died during what the zoo called routine social introductions between the two groups of gorillas at the zoo's Great Ape House.

It is not clear if the disease caused the gorilla to collapse, but officials say that a final pathology report may provide more information on the cause of death.

Mopie was said to be very active on Monday, and was not showing signs of an illness.

A 23-year-old gorilla named Kuja died Saturday as a team of veterinary specialists tried to implant a cardiac device. (AP)

The Need for Speed

Chevy Monte Carlo isn't like NASCAR — but it's pretty close

ROAD TEST | So the 2006 Chevrolet Monte Carlo at dealerships is front-wheel drive, not rear-wheel drive like the Monte Carlo that NASCAR driver Jeff Gordon races in the Nextel Cup every weekend.

And the Monte Carlo in showrooms includes seats for five, while Gordon and fellow race car driver Dale Earnhardt Jr. have only driver's seats in their racetrack-ready models.

Still, buyers of the 2006 production Monte Carlo — especially the top-of-the-line SS model with small-block V-8 — can feel a subtle link between their cars and the race-winning National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing Monte Carlos.

Inside, the 2006 Monte Carlo retains the old-school feel of a two-door coupe, yet it's larger than most other coupes offered today. Outside, the silhouette is vaguely reminiscent of a NASCAR Nextel Cup vehicle.

Most of all, under the hood this year, Chevrolet replaced the top engine — a 240-horsepower, supercharged V-6 in the 2005 Monte Carlo SS — with a much more potent, 303-horsepower, small block V-8 that delivers POWER TRIP: The 2006 Chevy Monte Carlo SS is built on power, as seen with its 303-horsepower, small block V-8 engine. That's a sizeable step up from the 2005 model, which featured a 240-horsepower supercharged V-6. The car costs $26,700.

323 foot-pounds of torque at 4,400 rpm.

While this isn't anywhere near the 700-plus horsepower and more than 500 foot-pounds of torque at 7,000 or so rpm in today's Nextel Cup vehicles, it's a much-needed improvement.

Now, everyday drivers can feel strong, sustained acceleration in their Monte Carlos if they want to mimic a racer, just a little.

The interesting thing about the LS4 V-8 in the consumer-version Monte Carlo is the fuel economy mode called Displacement on Demand. DOD automatically switches the engine from eight-cylinder operation to only four cylinders when the car doesn't need to gulp gasoline in all cylinders.

This typically occurred during the test drive just about every time I let up on the gas pedal and coasted.

Chevy officials said DOD can boost fuel economy by 8 percent in the Monte Carlo compared with all-V-8-all-the-time operation. But in my test drive, the majority of it in city traffic, I still didn't get terrific mileage. The on-board computer said I averaged 14 miles a gallon — far less than the government rating of 18 mpg in the city and 28 mpg on the highway.

There's only one transmission in the production Monte Carlo, and it's a four-speed automatic. Premium fuel is recommended for optimum performance. ANN M. JOB (AP)

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats monthly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

Recently, a woman in a shopping center asked me for help when she couldn't turn the key in her van's ignition switch. I couldn't help. The driver's manual said it should turn after inserting the key. Can you suggest any reason this would have happened, and what I could have done, if anything, to correct it?

This problem is usually caused by turning the ignition off with the wheels turned. When the engine stops, the power assist goes away. If the wheels are turned when this happens, the force of the tires is applied to the steering-lock mechanism, which causes the key to bind and become impossible to turn. The fix: First, never shut the engine off in any car with the wheels turned. If you do and the ignition locks, apply strong pressure to the steering wheel in the direction the wheels are turned while attempting to operate the key.

I have a five-year-old Saab with 40,000 miles on it. The windshield is starting to get really bad as far as tiny scratches go. I use Rain-X so that water beads up nicely, but the glare during twilight and on the highway at night is getting bad. Is there anything I can do?

Nothing other than get a new windshield.

Italy's Late Goals Defeat Germans

Italians score 2 in the final minutes of extra time, advance to final

WORLD CUP | Fabio Grosso and Alessandro Del Piero each scored late in extra time Tuesday to put Italy in the World Cup final after beating Germany 2-0.

Grosso curled a left-footed shot past the diving Jens Lehmann in the 119th minute to put the three-time champions into Sunday's final against either France or Portugal. Del Piero added another in injury time.

In the first half of extra time, Italy started out the better team, with Alberto Gilardino getting inside the German defense and sending a soft shot past Lehmann and off the post.

The ball rolled across the front of the open goal but there were no other Italian players to score.

said. "We had set ourselves the target of reaching the semifinals, but once you've reached that, you want to go all the way."

The two teams were level 0-0 after 90 minutes, with Germany having more of the chances.

"It was an even game," Klose said. "Compliments to the Italians, they took advantage of their fast breaks. We can be proud of our young team. We want to win the game for third place."

The Italians had allowed only an own-goal against the United States in five games, and their technique carried them even when their legs didn't want to.

Italy will be playing in the World Cup final for the sixth time. The Italians won at home in 1934 and then added another four years later in France. Italy won its third title in 1982, beating West Germany in the final in Spain. In both 1970 and 1994, the Italians lost to Brazil in the final. BARRY WILNER (AP)

Ryan Zimmerman, top, celebrates his second walk-off homer in three weeks.

Rookie Blasts a Winner

Zimmerman's walkoff homer lifts Nationals over Marlins, 6-4

NATIONALS | Ryan Zimmerman hit a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth to lift the Washington Nationals over the Florida Marlins 6-4 Tuesday.

It was Zimmerman's second game-winning homer in less than three weeks. He hit a two-run homer in the ninth to beat the New York Yankees 3-2 on June 18.

The Nationals won their fourth straight, and the Marlins dropped their third in a row.

Zimmerman hit a 2-2 pitch from Florida closer Joe Borowski (0-2) over the left-field fence with Robert Fick on second and All-Star Alfonso Soriano on first. He was mobbed by his teammates at home plate, and then he came out for a curtain call.

Chad Cordero (4-3) pitched 1 1/3 innings for the win.

Marlins starter Scott Olsen allowed three runs, two earned, and four hits in six innings.

John Patterson allowed two runs and four hits, walked one and struck out five in five innings for the Nationals. He is winless in three starts since returning from two months on the disabled list with a right forearm strain. (AP)

Lopez Is Rocked While Contreras Shuts Down O's

ORIOLES | Jose Contreras easily won his 17th straight decision and Juan Uribe hit a three-run homer and drove in five runs to help the Chicago White Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 13-0.

Contreras (9-0) pitched 6 2/3 scoreless innings and left to a loud ovation from White Sox fans. He allowed six hits and struck out three without allowing a walk. His last loss came on Aug. 15 against the Twins. During his streak Contreras has 2.86 ERA in 23 starts.

The White Sox, who only had two hits in Monday's 8-1 loss to Baltimore, teed off on Orioles starter Rodrigo Lopez.

Portugal Coach Looks for Lucky 13

Scolari, undefeated in 12 World Cup games, faces France in semis

WORLD CUP | Will it be unlucky 13 for Luiz Felipe Scolari?

Portugal's coach has never lost a World Cup match, a run of 12 unbeaten games dating back to 2002, when he led his native Brazil to the title.

Now he is about to be tested by a resurgent French team in the semifinals.

Scolari snared seven straight at the World Cup four years ago. In Germany, the surprising Portuguese have won four and drawn one — a goalless quarterfinal against England when Portugal advanced after a penalty shootout.

Portugal's semifinal clash with France in Munich today is the 13th World Cup match of Scolari's career. He's looking to become the only coach to win the World Cup trophy twice with different teams.

Scolari reckons the encounter

Portugal coach Luiz Felipe Scolari, center, celebrates his team's quarterfinal win over England. Scolari, who has never lost, looks to remain unbeaten against France.

with France will definitely stretch the Portuguese, describing it as their sternest test yet in Germany.

"It's another step in a big project. We never aimed to be world champion, we have always just concentrated on the next game," Scolari said.

Five of his players are carrying a yellow card and will miss the potential final if they see another against the French. Scolari, though, says they will give no quarter.

"To get to the final we have to win the semifinal. We have to play our normal game," he said.

"If anyone picks up a card, it's not a problem," he added. "If you bring a whole squad, it's because you trust them all." BARRY HATTON (AP)

Maria Sharapova will play top-ranked Amelie Mauresmo in Thursday's semifinal.

Former Champ Is Back in Semifinal

Streaking Sharapova's set for a collision with top-ranked Mauresmo

TENNIS | About the only thing that made Maria Sharapova flinch during her Wimbledon quarter-final was the streaker prancing around on court.

Sharapova lost three of the next four games before finishing off a 6-1, 6-4 victory over No. 7 Elena Dementieva to reach the semifinals for the third straight year.

"I heard the crowd go a little wild, and I looked back and saw the man jumping up and down. It took the crowd a point or two to settle down, but I'm pretty good at keeping my focus. I don't let things like that bother me too much," the 2004 Wimbledon champion said.

The fourth-seeded Sharapova faces No. 1 Amelie Mauresmo Thursday, when No. 2 Kim Clijsters meets No. 3 Justine Henin-Hardenne in an all-Belgian semifinal.

It's only the fifth time in the past 25 years that women seeded 1-4 all reached the Wimbledon semifinals, and this is certainly an impressive quartet: All have won at least one Grand Slam championship, including the past three (Clijsters at the U.S. Open, Mauresmo at the Australian and Henin-Hardenne at the French).

Sharapova is the only semifinalist who already owns a Wimbledon title, though, and the grit that carried her to that triumph was on full display on Centre Court. Well, for most of the match, anyway. (AP)

More Out of the Tour As Crash Mars Race

Belgium's Tom Boonen takes over yellow jersey, Hincapie is in third

CYCLING | The already depleted Tour de France lost another top rider Tuesday when Alejandro Valverde of Spain crashed during the third stage; world champion Tom Boonen of Belgium took the overall lead.

On a day when cycling's showcase race crossed into three countries, Germany's Matthias Kessler won the hilly stage under a blazing sun, surging ahead on the last climb.

Valverde crashed in the middle of the main pack, causing a small pileup. The Tour Web site said he injured his collarbone.

Pistons Go After A New Center

NBA | The Detroit Pistons reached an agreement with free-agent center Nazr Mohammed on Tuesday, a day after losing MVP center Ben Wallace to the Chicago Bulls, a person within the NBA told The

The person, who spoke on condition of anonymity because NBA free agents can't officially sign contracts until July 12, said the team and Mohammed made an oral pact on a five-year contract — with the final year being an option — that will pay him about $5 million next season.

Hooked on a Feeling

There's more rock on this Dashboard, but it still gets emotional

WOE IS ME | Chris Carrabba is a slave to his feelings, a quality that fans of his chart-topping band, Dashboard Confessional, adore.

After almost two years of writing and recording, the band released its fourth studio album, "Dusk and Summer" (Vagrant), last week. Carrabba's expanded Dashboard's original acoustic feel to create a bigger rock sound on its latest effort, but his lovelorn lyrics remain.

Dashboard Confessional will start a 21-date summer tour July 10, with a stop at DAR Constitution Hall on August 9.

Do you embrace being called "the king of emo," or are you trying to get away from it?

Neither. I never thought it applied. The press needs to tag you with something. Eventually they'll get tired of that and call me something else.

This album has the bigger sound that was first heard on your last LP. Why did you go in that direction?

I'm not sure I decided. That's just how I was writing, how I was feel-

WELL, TOO BAD: Chris Carrabba doesn't consider himself "the king of emo."

ing. I don't have a lot of preconceptions: "Well, I should do this now." [It is] where I am as a writer at the moment.

How did the collaboration with

Counting Crows' Adam Duritz on the new song "So Long, So Long" come about?

We're friends, so we've been talking about doing something together, in the form of a tour, for a long time. We weren't able to line it up where we both had the same schedule, but he really liked this track so we invited him to sing.

Your lyrics are very personal and emotional. Is anything off limits?

Probably, but I just tap into whatever is resonating at the moment. There are certain things I don't need to sing about, to write about, as far as what triggers me as a writer. So there's plenty I don't write about.

Life serves as an inspiration for me. I'm interested in minutiae and placing it elsewhere.

Your fans expect a very specific sound. How far can you expand before you alienate them?

It's not something I worry about. They've given us a really wide berth. We hope they like it, it's as simple as that. There's certain fans that will only like one way we did things and certain fans only like another way. We ebb and flow between those two things. If you liked one, you may have to wait a couple of records, but you'll find it again.

Soul Asylum vocalist Dave Pirner performing with the band last month.

The Upside of Anger

Soul Asylum faces a tragedy and looks for a reason to go on

MUSIC | It's been 14 years since Soul Asylum's "Grave Dancer's Union," was released, so it's easy to view "The Silver Lining" (Legacy) — in stores July 11 — as a comeback disc.

It proved to be a swan song of sorts. Original bassist Karl Mueller succumbed to throat cancer before finishing his parts. Former Replacement and current Guns N' Roses bassist Tommy Stinson stepped in to help Soul Asylum vocalist Dave Pirner.

Often throughout this disc's 13 tracks, the band sounds as if it is trying to capture the commercial success of "Runaway Train" — lot of slow to mid-tempo tunes with huge, memorable choruses. However, the quartet — including original guitarist Dan Murphy and new drummer Michael Bland — is at its best when at full-throttle on the New Orleans-inspired "Bus Named Desire." "The Silver Lining" could use another song or two of this ilk.

Given the band's history and that a Replacement is on bass, the music isn't as gloriously sloppy as one would figure. It's weird for anyone in their 30s to think alt-rock has become adult alternative. "The Silver Lining" makes a case that it has — and that's not necessarily a bad thing. Getting down with the soundtrack to an exploitation classic

AT LAST | Is there a filmmaker who will do the right thing and make a movie about "Dolemite"? A so-bad-it's-great compendium of blaxploitation clichés, 1975's "Dolemite" has it all: a steely antihero, leering gangsters, corrupt cops, gratuitous sex and violence, outlandish pimp suits and an all-girl kung fu squad.

"Dolemite" is packed with fascinating ingredients, starting with a cult hero of epic proportions, maverick black comedian Rudy Ray Moore, the movie's star and producer, now widely recognized as a seminal figure in black culture — a link between its pre-tech urban oral traditions and the personas of rap figures such as Ice-T and Snoop Dogg.

"Dolemite" has been available on video and DVD for years. But this week the soundtrack that propels the action and sweetens the too-much-information love scenes has been released on CD.

The music, created by Moore and largely played by a collection of musicians dubbed the Soul Rebellion Orchestra, vividly evokes its era and oeuvre. Hard-edged and derivative but also spirited and flavorful, these funk-dominated 21 tracks can stand on their own as an eccentric party record.

The music includes bass-forward urban funk and soul music in the style of Otis Redding. There are some bluesy shuffles and a dip into the Bacharachish waters of '60s sunshine soul-pop. RICHARD CROMELIN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

THIS JUST IN: They have the look of a news team for a small-city television station, but the stars of Comedy Central's "Dog Bites Man" are just very convincing actors.

Dog Bites Spokane

It seems there is a difference between news and comedy

FOOLING | Now we know how Reno feels.

The cable channel that televises the cop-show spoof "Reno 911!" has a new comedy called "Dog Bites Man." It is set at fictional KHBX-TV of Spokane, and pokes brutal fun at the excesses of local television newscasts — which can range from apocalyptic warnings about pending storms to breathless reports of traffic backlogs that are already over.

The show, which airs on Wednesdays at 10:30 p.m., has not been embraced by Spokanites.

Jeanna Hofmeister, a local tourism executive, said she was contacted by "Dog Bites Man" producers to help find a television studio where they could conduct interviews for a documentary on the media.

Suspicious after seeing articles from Southern California about how the "Dog Bites Man" crew was duping people there into mock interviews with the show's characters, she asked the producers if they were planning to do the same in Spokane.

"They never called me back," Hofmeister said.

In the program, the actors present themselves as legitimate reporters during interviews with real people. Executives at KREM-TV, worried the show was too realistic, aired a report urging people not to confuse the phony station with any real news organization in town.

"Dog" creator-executive producer Dan Mazer, whose credits include "Da Ali G Show," has never set foot in Spokane and knows little about the city. He said the producers were made to feel so unwelcome in the city, they filmed exteriors in Portland, Ore., instead.

Mazer said the show arose from the success of his "Da Ali G Show," in which a clueless young man constantly becomes confused while interviewing prominent people.

"We took that concept of an idiot interviewing people, but expanded it to a team of idiots," Mazer said.

"Outside" includes interviews with directors, actors and critics, among them Martin Scorsese, Spike Lee, Arthur Penn, Gena Rowlands and John Sayles.

They discuss such outsiders as Orson Welles, John Cassavetes, Nicholas Ray, Sam Fuller, Sam Peckinpah and Stanley Kubrick.

SHOOT TO THRILL: Stanley Kubrik during the filming of "A Clockwork Orange."

Scorsese talks of other pressures. When one of his movies made $60 million, he felt proud. But a studio chief told him that they weren't interested in making "only" $60 million any more.

Tonight includes three films by Cassavetes: "Faces" (9:15 p.m.), "A Woman Under the Influence" (12:45 a.m.) and "A Child Is Waiting" (3:30 a.m.). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

The Year Of the Dog

Americans still relish the Wienermobile on its 70th anniversary

Katie Shroeder got her first glimpse of the slick tan, red and yellow beast when she was a waitress in Kansas. Grabbing a once-in-a-lifetime chance, she tracked it for 60 miles until it finally stopped.

Shroeder's chase two years ago caught the Oscar Mayer Wienermobile, and for now at least, her calling.

"I was so obsessed," she said of aspiring to work the wiener.

Now she is Katie Shroeder, hotdogger — that is, a driver of the Wienermobile, Oscar Mayer's pioneering mobile marketing gimmick that turns 70 this year.

"It's one of those things from my childhood," said Karen Preston, 47, who came out to see the Wienermobile recently in Las Vegas.

Oscar Mayer created the Wienermobile in 1936 to transfer the company spokesperson from store to store.

The original was a 13-foot-long metal hot dog on wheels with open cockpits in the center and rear, so the hotdogger could pop up. Hog dog whistles were given out starting in 1951, and many people still show up at Wienermobile events looking for the whistles. The 1952

“Just seeing the looks on people's faces when we drive into town is just priceless. There are always people inviting us over for dinner.”

LINDSAY BRANT

version of the Wienermobile is in the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

The Wienermobile has evolved with the times. Now, it's 27 feet long and boasts a GPS navigation system, six mustard- and ketchup-colored seats and a V-8 engine.

There actually are six Wienermobiles. Two hotdoggers are assigned to each, taking turns driving and living on the road for a year, traveling to promotional events and listening to that familiar jingle, over and over.

The jingle has progressed, too. There is the classic that surely has taught millions of children to spell b-o-l-o-g-n-a, and the wiener jingle. In 1998, a Spanish jingle was added.

Each Wienermobile has a CD of the wiener jingle being sung in 21 different styles ranging from rap to country. Shroeder and her partner, Lindsay Brant, swear they never get sick of "Oh, I wish I were an Oscar Mayer wiener ..."

So just how do you get to be

BUNS OF PLASTIC: The Wienermobile was a 13-foot-long metal hot dog when it was created in 1936. It evolved, however, and today it's 27 feet long and boasts a GPS navigation system, six mustard- and ketchup-colored seats and a V-8 engine.

the driver of a traffic-stopping pop culture icon?

Oscar Mayer recruits at college campuses, looking for outgoing, independent, trustworthy graduating seniors willing to spend a year inside an oversized hot dog.

More than 1,000 people apply each year, according to Ed Roland, Oscar Mayer's mobile marketing manager.

"Twelve lucky ones cut the mustard," he said.

Those 12 head to Hot Dog High in Madison, Wis., where they are instructed in everything from crisis training to how to drive the dog.

"We do everything we can to avoid scratching our buns," Roland said of the training; punmanship apparently is a job skill in this field.

Graduates crisscross the country promoting the 123-year-old brand. Hazards of the job include crazed fans begging you to pull over on the highway and families hanging out the window, desperate for a picture.

"Just seeing the looks on people's faces when we drive into town is just priceless," said Brant, 23, who graduated from Penn State University last year. "There are always people inviting us over for dinner."

She estimates she hears the jingle a thousand times a day, but insists she never once has thought about tossing the CD out the window and running over it with the 14,000-pound Wienermobile.

The recent Las Vegas visit was a rare treat for fans: Four Wienermobiles at one time, almost a half package. And with them came the chance for wiener immortality.

The hotdoggers are in search of new jingle singers. Five winners, age 6 and up, will be chosen this year to star in a national Oscar Mayer television commercial. With the Wienermobiles came the chance to audition.

For sisters Preston and Tracy French of Temecula, Calif., the big hot dog brought back memories of the dog days of summer. (Of course.)

"I came because it's nostalgic," French said.

The memory is heartwarming ... er, bun warming.

Breeches and Beaches

Italian designers present cropped, sea-worthy garb

If the city can't go to the beach, let the beach come to the city, seems to be the Italian designers' fashion pitch for summer 2007. Whether at poolside or in the office, the important thing is for a guy to chill out and shed formality for a cool, relaxed style.

The ubiquitous Bermuda shorts defined the upbeat mood of the current round of menswear preview presentations in Milan. Cool and cropped in nylon, classic knee-length in linen or cuffed in formal pinstripe as part of a business suit, the look became an instant hit.

Giorgio Armani's ideas for next summer more or less summed up the beach and business look that has marked this week's preview showcases.

Armani's jackets were structured, but fashioned in ultra soft fabric, while trousers remained comfortably loose despite a formal crease. A funky waistcoat sewn into the jacket lent youth to the suit.

Armani preferred a trendy Nehru style blouse to the traditional stiff-collared white shirt, kept his jeans tight and paired his outfits with pristine white running shoes. Colors ranged from sandy beige and sea blue, to city gray.

Although there were only a few pairs, Armani did include Bermuda shorts — an absolute must for warmer weather — in his show.

Dolce & Gabbana looked to the American Indians for inspiration. With a backdrop of teepees and desert boulders, models sauntered down the catwalk in jeans shorts, buckskin jackets and embroidered moccasins.

This collection stretched next season's beach and business concept with its heavy concentration on sportswear, from tank tops and track suits to slick embroidered bathing trunks.

There were no suits — not even the latest Bermuda model — and shirts were spiffy but sporty with extra long fringing. However all of D&G's lower body fashion was cropped, except for the trademark baggy jeans.

Kean Etro showed a collection inspired by seamen.

Rather than shorts, he opted for knee-length styles, mainly breeches and cropped pirate pants. Some models donned three-cornered hats and sea-colored jackets with double-breasted buttoning and tails, a la Admiral Nelson, while others sported scruffy pants paired with bandanas and eye patches.

Frida Giannini showed her first menswear collection for Gucci after becoming the maison's creative director earlier this year.

Like her colleagues, the designer is in a vacation mood, but the Gucci man has his own agenda. For him, comfort means silk shirts and crocodile accessories, with above-the-knee styles relegated to poolside. He abhors the loose look, and opts for a slim fit. On his feet he wears jodhpur boots or thonged leather sandals.

Enthusiastic applause greeted the well-put-together show, confirming that the 34-year-old designer is following in the swaggering footsteps of Gucci's former whiz kid, Tom Ford. DANIELA PETROFF (AP)

Snap, Crackle, Pop

Too Faced's FROZEN LOTION ($22, Sephora) is a peach-hued body mousse that squirts out icy-cold and, far more compellingly, crackles and fizzes like a baking soda and vinegar volcano. Why? Because it's fun — so fun that this tester used the entire 2.2 oz. bottle in one day. The mousse (it's not lotion-like at all) moisturizes with aloe, hibiscus flower and ginseng, and leaves traces of golden glitter behind. But that's so beside the point — which is clearly the Rice Krispie effect. It's safe to say that you have never tried anything like it. STEPHANIE JONES

My Thighs and I

Ask the nearest woman what she hates about her body. Or don't. But chances are, she'd be able to come up with something. The problem of female body dissatisfaction is taken on completely ineffectually by clinical social worker Linda Minton in "MAKING PEACE WITH YOUR THIGHS" ($15, Integrity Publishing). Her Christianity-based message is simple: God loves your body, so you should, too. But the book is ultimately a self-congratulatory tale of the author's journey to self-acceptance, and it's nothing women haven't heard from Betty Friedan or Cosmopolitan. A Tribute to Whitman

MUSEUMS | The DONALD W. REYNOLDS CENTER FOR ART AND PORTRAITURE opened to the public this past weekend in the OLD PATENT OFFICE BUILDING, the renovated home of the Smithsonian's MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART and NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY.

Among all of the gems found in Washington's third-oldest federal building, FREE RIDE featured four must-sees for visitors to the museums. One of them is a modest room on the first floor devoted to the great American poet WALT WHITMAN. Whitman worked as a nurse there during the Civil War and called the structure "the noblest of Washington buildings."

Also on the list:

floor, with a design that makes stunning use of natural light.

→ The third floor's Minton tiles, which were reproduced to resemble the originals.

→ The portrait "Grant and His Generals" by Ole Peter Hansen Balling on the second floor, which shows Ulysses S. Grant with his top Civil War lieutenants — including names D.C. denizens will know from the city's circles and squares. For details, go to READEXPRESS.COM.

Live Online

Home improvement expert TOM KRAEUTLER was online last Friday to discuss repairs and clean-up from last week's rains. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

We just closed on a house a few weeks ago. Our roof leaked with the rain, causing some sagging in the ceiling and damaging two freshly painted walls. Do I have any recourse with the home inspector?

It depends. Home inspectors can only report on the home at the time of inspection. If it was a dry day and there were no visible sings of leaks or evidence that the roof was improperly installed, then there was nothing the inspector could have done to catch this. However, if the home had an obvious history of leaks, then certainly this should have been an issue.

While our house seems to have avoided flooding, we are experiencing another problem related to the torrential rains: Ants. We were having the problem well before the rains came and applied a lawn treatment and spray "barrier" around the house. However, since we started drying out, I noticed ants streaming back. I'm curious if I should try another application or hire an exterminator.

Home Work

The ants go marching on and on because they LOVE water! My recommendation is to hire a pro and ask about a product called Termidor. It is a non-detectable insecticide that works for ants and termites. Because the ants can't detect it, they go through it, get it on their bodies and then take it back to the nest where it is passed to the rest of the colony.

I have a wet basement that's mostly carpet and when water is removed and you've [removed] the soaked padding, how do you know if you've removed mold/mildew? I'm planning to have an inspection as well, but the stench is rather annoying.

If you have stench, you very likely have mold. Get it dry ASAP.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You haven't been as productive lately as you have been, but this is a phase that will pass—once you open your eyes even wider.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be doing things in a manner that takes other people by surprise, but you know in your heart it's the way you have to do them right now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your organization may not be able to overcome what may prove to be one of your darkest moods in some time. Fight to remain positive, productive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Even a workaholic such as yourself can let go a little and have some fun with a Cancer native who may be feeling just a little silly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) One promise is kept, but another is broken—almost in the same instant. Be sure you're not the one letting anyone down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Share your thoughts with those around you, or you'll be disappointed when they don't acknowledge what seems plain to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're going to need a little more in the way of mental stimulation. Your body is getting a workout; now concentrate on your head.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Someone who doesn't understand your need to be left alone may test your patience. Tempers may flare.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Intruding on someone else's affairs may prove as dangerous as anything else you could possibly imagine. Steer clear of obvious hazards.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The best place for you to be all day long is safely at home, surrounded by what is most comfortable and familiar. If you must travel, use caution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Though opposites attract, you are likely to find the greatest value in someone who has a great deal in common with you. You'll find a new friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You and a Virgo native have much going for you, and, if you team up, you can be sure to maximize your profits—at least for the time being.

Show Some Compassion

I WAS HAPPY TO HEAR someone else wasn't pleased with the type of animal stories being reported ("Animal Cruelty Isn't Funny," Jun 29). As a society, I think it's sad the way we dismiss things so easily, such as the fact that cows can sense impending death, and if the will to live isn't already beaten out of them, they will try to escape. If issues were reported seeking compassion rather than with a "ha-ha-stupid-cow" manner, we as a society might be able to become more compassionate as a whole. Compassion can be catchy.

Star Feigns Charming Absence of Self-Esteem

ANNIE LENNOX, who found fame as the voice of the Eurythmics, said Tuesday she felt like a fraud accepting an honorary degree. Lennox, 51, said it was exciting to receive the honor from the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama, in Glasgow. "What I have done with my life has all been about self-invention and I didn't have degrees or qualifications or anyone to guide me," she said. "But I do think it's great that young people today can have people to help them out because Scotland has turned out some tremendous artists and performers and writers, and if we can keep that tradition going, it would be a fantastic thing." She added: "I'm very happy to be here, even though I feel like a complete fraud." (AP)

ANGEL OF MERCY

Alyssa Saves Girl Baseball Fans From the Horrors Of Not Looking Trampy

ALYSSA MILANO has announced that she'll design (which means, we assume, that she'll partner with a firm that will design) a line of baseball gear for young women, E! Online reported. The label: TOUCH-by Alyssa Milano. "Her personality and love for the game, combined with her fashion sense, will pave the way for success at boutiques, specialty stores and high-end department stores," said Carl Banks, president of sports licensing for G-III, the company working with Milano. Milano also issued a statement: "When I go to baseball games, I want to wear fan gear to support my team, but I've found that the product mix offered in the current marketplace does not address my everyday fashion needs. Women should be able to look stylish while cheering on their favorite team." (EXPRESS)
